Honoring International Birth Trauma Awareness Week — 13-19 July 2026

This month, LER joins the Birth Trauma Association in recognizing all those touched by birth trauma.

As a lactation care provider, you're often among the first professionals a new parent trusts after delivery, which puts you in a uniquely powerful position to respond with the sensitivity your clients need. In her LER course, Trauma Informed Care, Laurie K. Scherer, MS, LCPC-S, a licensed clinical professional counselor with advanced trauma certification and a former IBCLC, gives you the tools to do exactly that.

Lactation Training For Advanced Practice Providers

More and more advanced practice providers are discovering how naturally lactation and infant feeding intersect with their work. Whether you're looking to sharpen your skills in a specific area or earn a credential that opens new career doors, LER has training designed with you in mind. Visit our dedicated webpage to explore your options. While you're there, grab our free e-book, Your Path to Becoming an IBCLC.
