Questions About COVID Vaccines and Lactation?

As the vaccine rollout continues in some places and gets started in others, an increasing number of lactating parents have questions about their options. Join us for a live panel discussion, A 360° Look at the COVID Vaccine and Lactation: Transparency, New Research, and Counseling Families. Panelists Stephanie George, BA (HONS), IBCLC, Aboriginal Midwife; Cecilia Tomori, PhD; and, Jonathan Snowden, PhD will discuss the latest in supporting lactating parents with questions about the vaccines, including how we shift the conversation around hesitancy, an update on what we know right now, and how to support patient decision making. Facilitated by Sekeita Lewis-Johnson, DNP, FNP-BC, IBCLC. Monday, March 8th at 9 a.m. Pacific; noon Eastern. Free; registration is required.

IBCLC Registry "Search By Name" Returns

Do you need a way to verify your status as an IBCLC? The International Board of Lactation Consultant Examiners (IBLCE) registry is now back to offering a search-by-name function. Learn more in their update here.

How Much Do You Know About the Evolution of Human Milk?

As a lactation professional, you know a lot about human milk—its components, its importance, and how to help parents make and deliver it. But how much do you know about milk's history? The evolutionary story of human milk—both how it evolved and how it evolves us—is the topic of the second presentation in Laurel Wilson's Lactation Education Resources conference series "Human Milk: Leaps Beyond Nutrition." Learn more in this new blog post here.
